Compliance 360[®] Releases New Corporate Compliance Solution

Alpharetta, GA—October 6, 2005 Compliance 360, a leading provider of governance, risk and compliance management solutions announced today that the latest version of its software is immediately available to all subscribers. The release has a number of significant new capabilities including a content acquisition engine, a surveys module and enhanced workflow.

Utilizing Compliance 360's content acquisition engine (CAE), customers are able to access the latest updates to rules and regulations through major content aggregators and automatically download that information into their corporate compliance management application. With the CAE, customers are able to capture the most up-to-date content relevant to their particular compliance programs, immediately analyze impact of changes and take action to maintain compliance. Users are able to automate content acquisition so that actionable tasks are created based on relevance.

The surveys module allows customers to create, administer and analyze data from surveys with unlimited questions in many varieties of formats. Users are able to distribute and follow up on surveys within the Compliance 360 application. All data is stored and available for download and an Internet plug-in allows customers to make surveys available online. Workflow processing is built-in, allowing users to set up rules that execute automatically. Surveys are a valuable tool for uncovering areas for improvement and monitoring compliance activities. Use of the Compliance 360 surveys module simplifies the process of creating surveys that elicit accurate responses.

In addition to the CAE and surveys module, new process definitions in the Compliance 360 solution give organizations more ways to automate the flow of documents, contracts and other information through the business to more effectively manage the corporate compliance process. These new process definitions standardize the flow of documents and information while allowing customers to set up rules that automatically execute based on status.
